The Right Help for Emerging Teen Readers

An ever-growing number of middle and high school students are functionally illiterate. This means that there are many teens who are still emergent or beginning readers.

Research shows that students who lack a grounding in decoding skills and phonemic awareness are not simply reluctant readers; they are deeply challenged readers. These older students need phonics decoding skills in order to master reading—but such skills must be taught in the context of their actual ages and interests, not in the context of a kindergarten or first-grade curriculum and pedagogy.

Phonics programs that truly serve the needs of this older population are rare to nonexistent. Many of the books available to teen readers at these readability levels—phonics books or “decodables”—are generally geared toward children in preschool, kindergarten, and first grade. For struggling teens, being seen with these “baby” books is mortifying, crushing both interest and motivation.

TERL Phonics has been developed to provide the older emerging reader with reading material and instruction that is age-appropriate, properly scaffolded, and intrinsically motivating. A phonics orientation gives older students the skills they need to feel capable of reading on their own, and with capability comes confidence and motivation.

Additional motivation comes from the very nature of the TERL Phonics books. These are “easy readers” that no teen would be ashamed to be seen with. In addition, each book is supported by a lesson plan that includes phonics skills and guided reading questions, reproducible phonics and comprehension activities, and a comprehension quiz.

The TERL Phonics books, combined with this scaffolded instructional support, provide the perfect solution for today's teacher who has to differentiate instruction to meet the needs of the most challenged readers while still teaching concepts appropriate to students' ages and grade levels.

Award-Winning Books

What Is TERL All About?

The Teen Emergent Reader Libraries® have been developed to solve the issue of motivating the most struggling teen readers to pick up a book and start reading. Written at the emergent and beginning reader levels, the books offer mature, teen-centric storylines that entice teens to read. Formatted as 48- to 64-page books, these fiction and nonfiction selections look similar to other teen novels and feature photographs to reflect a contemporary, age-appropriate tone. In addition, each book is supported by a lesson plan, guided reading questions, a reproducible comprehension activity, and a quiz. The books, combined with the instructional support, provide the perfect solution for today's teacher who has to differentiate instruction to meet the needs of all learners while teaching on-grade-level concepts.
