Problem-Solving

EMILY ANDERSON

---

Jordan works in an office.

It's his first job.

He loves fixing computers.

There's just one problem.

Sometimes he gets tired.

He tries to stay awake.

It's not easy.

One day he falls asleep.

He snores.

His boss hears him.

“Jordan!” she says.

He wakes up.

She stares at him.

“Sorry, Mila,” Jordan says.

“That’s okay.

But don’t let it happen again.”

A man with short dark hair and a beard is sitting at a wooden table. He is wearing a dark green long-sleeved shirt and a black watch. He has his right hand resting on his forehead, looking down with a thoughtful or worried expression. A smartphone is on the table in front of him. The background is a light-colored wall with vertical lines.

“I won’t.”

Jordan worries.

I didn’t mean to fall asleep.

It just happened.

What if I do it again?

---

The next day, Jordan gets sleepy.

Oh, no, he thinks.

I need to stay awake.

He tries.

It doesn't work.

His eyelids grow heavy.

Soon he is asleep.

"Hey!" Mila says.

Jordan wakes up.

She stands over him.

“I’m sorry,” he says.

“I tried my best not to sleep.”

Mila sits down next to him.

“Trying hard isn’t enough.

You have to solve the problem.”

“What do you mean?” Jordan asks.

You have to stop and think.

Then plan a solution.

Take it step by step.”

Jordan doesn’t know what to say.

Mila helps him out.

“Let’s talk through step one.

Study the problem.

What’s going on here?”

“I keep falling asleep,” Jordan says.

“When?”

“After lunch.”

“Okay,” Mila says.

“Why do you get tired then?”

Jordan isn’t sure.

Still, he has an idea.

“You know what?

I’ll use my phone alarm.

It will buzz every ten minutes.

That will help me stay awake.”

He turns back to his desk.
