

alternative fuel

a substance that is made from corn and plant materials; can be used to power vehicles

Environmental Studies

coral reef

a ridge of tiny living creatures and their skeletons that forms in the ocean

average

the number you get when you add things together and then divide the total by the number of things

debate

a discussion on a topic in which people argue opposing opinions

American Culture

professional

a person who has a job that requires specific training or education

Science/Technology

degree

an award for the completion of a course of study

rights privileges that belong to people and are protected by the law

navy

part of a country's military that works at sea

text

a message that is sent and received by mobile devices

Hi, Ernesto! Can you please lock our front door?

Yes, no problem.

Thank you! 😊

Everyday Math

statistics

numbers that give information about something

