

TAIL GUNNER

The Story of a Bombing Raid

Dee Phillips

TAIL GUNNER

The Story of a Bombing Raid

Dee Phillips

 SADDLEBACK
PUBLISHING

The drone of the engines fills my ears.
The same thought goes around and around in my head.

Will I die tonight?

TAIL GUNNER

The Story of a Bombing Raid

During World War II, Britain's Bomber Command Force flew bombing raids over Germany.

Night after night, they bombed German factories where weapons and aircraft were being made.

German anti-aircraft guns on the ground shot at the bombers.

Enemy fighter planes, known as night fighters, tried to blow them out of the skies.

About 125,000 men joined Bomber Command.

More than 55,000 lost their lives.

The drone of the engines fills my ears.

We fly on through the dark night.

Please, God.

Let us make it back.

Please don't let it be us tonight.

The drone of the engines fills my ears.

I peer out into the darkness.

I watch for night fighters.

I have to keep us safe.

Jim, Archie, Will, Gibby,

Frankie, CJ, and me.

Please, God.

Don't let it be us tonight.

I was 18 when I joined up.
I wanted to be on a bomber crew.
Taking the fight to the Germans.

I wanted to be a tail gunner.
Keeping the plane safe.
Keeping my mates safe.

